PREFACE

Every education system uses its own specific terminology to describe the characteristics of its organisation and operation. In trying to understand and make reliable comparisons of how the various education systems in Europe really work, we are often confronted with questions of terminology. The development of precise 'markers' for reference purposes is thus absolutely essential for better mutual understanding and to encourage good quality communication in an enlarged Europe in which student and teaching staff mobility, as well as the openness of education and training systems to the world at large, are essential aims of cooperation.

For these reasons, the Eurydice Network in 1999 launched a new series entitled the European Glossary on Education. Four volumes have already been published. They are concerned respectively with examinations, qualifications and titles (a second edition appeared in 2004), educational institutions (2000), teaching staff (2002) and management, monitoring and support staff (2003). Preparation of a fifth volume on formal decision-making, management and consultative bodies is under way.

This edition of the volume on educational institutions in Europe constitutes an update of the 2000 edition. It covers the 25 Member States of the European Union, the three EFTA/EEA countries, Bulgaria and Romania.

The Glossary offers a detailed presentation of the terminology used at national level to designate institutions at all educational levels. This second edition covers institutions which provide adult education, as well as those for pupils and students with special educational needs.

It sets out the official or most widely-used terms specific to a particular national education system in a way that will enable readers to conveniently locate their definitions and form a better understanding of the reality behind one system compared to another. A guide to the use of the Glossary is presented by way of introduction. It contains all relevant definitions and outlines the different aspects covered in the explanatory note on each term.

The Eurydice European Unit is very grateful to all National Units in the Network for their invaluable contribution to the quality of this publication.

The presentation, drafting and publication of the volume are entirely the responsibility of the Eurydice European Unit.

By making this Glossary available to all who attempt to compare, understand or translate terms specific to the field of education, the Eurydice Network hopes to make a further contribution to the greater transparency of education systems in Europe.

Introduction

This second edition of Volume 2 of the European Glossary on Education comprises 670 national terms used in the 2004/05 school year to designate categories or types of educational institution in the education system that cater for pupils, students and adult learners.

The terms included refer to institutions providing:

- pre-primary education (education-oriented programmes whether provided in a school or other setting);
- primary education;
- secondary education;
- post-secondary education;
- tertiary education;
- education for pupils with special educational needs (SEN);
- adult education institutions (A.Ed.).

The glossary only includes institutions offering full- or part-time education and training which is provided in a school setting or alternates with practical training in a company or training centre.

In many countries, institutions at primary, secondary or even tertiary level also offer adult education programmes in evening classes. These details are not mentioned in the glossary. However, if an institution offering mainstream education also provides daytime adult education, it is indicated in the explanatory note. Institutions exclusively intended for adult education have a separate entry in this glossary but only if their courses lead to recognised qualifications.

Military academies are only included in the glossary if their courses lead to officially recognized formal qualifications.

The glossary is neither a directory of individual institutions, nor a list of courses of study available within a particular stage, or cycle, of education.

It does not include specific terms which denote:

- pre-primary settings in which staff do not have a compulsory teaching qualification or another specialised qualification in education;
- institutions that provide solely in-service training, or distance learning institutions;
- private non-subsidised institutions (receiving very little or no support from the public sector).

In order to be accessible to a wide range of readers, the terms relating to educational institutions are presented in two parts.

In the first section the reader will find all the terms listed in alphabetical order for all countries and educational levels. Only the main terms, standard abbreviations and synonyms are included in the alphabetical list. Besides the explanatory note on the term, the information given for each entry includes a country reference, the most common grammatical forms of the basic term, and the level of programmes offered by the institution.

The second section comprises summary tables. These are presented by country. The terms are classified by level of education. Three categories of institution are distinguished: institutions providing mainstream education, separate schools for learners with SEN and adult education institutions. Abbreviations and synonyms are shown in brackets. The symbol (•) after a term means that institutions of this type may provide adult education as part of their role. Certain details of specific characteristics are shown below the summary tables where this is likely to contribute to understanding of the national situation.

The advantage of this dual structure is that it offers different routes of access to information. Readers who know a term but do not know what it means can search in the alphabetical list to find the name of the country, the explanatory note and related terms. However, if, for example, they need to search for all the terms used in a given country to refer to any particular level of education, they may consult the national summary table and can then return to the alphabetical table for a fuller definition of each of the terms.

Gimnazia (Гимназия)

Country: Bulgaria

Grammatical variants: Gimnazii

Level: ISCED 3

Explanatory note: Institution offering 4 years of full-time general upper secondary education to students aged from 15 to 19. Admission is based on successful completion of lower secondary education at ♦ Osnovno utchilishte and ♦ Progimnazia. The Ministry of Education and Science has overall responsibility for these public and private institutions. They are co-educational and non-denominational. Public establishments are centrally and municipally funded. No fees are payable. Private establishments are self funded. This institution can be attached to an osnovno utchilishte. Students who pass the compulsory final examination receive the certificate diploma za zavurcheno sredno obrazovanie, which gives access to vocational post-secondary training at ♦ Profesionalen kolej or to tertiary education at ♦ Academia (+), ♦ Kolej, ♦ Universitet.

Main terms (in original language)

For the purposes of the glossary, an educational institution is defined as a legal entity in its own right, recognised by the State as fulfilling the required conditions laid down in the relevant legislation and educational regulations, and whose staff possess recognised qualifications in education. Departments or subdivisions of an institution, like a faculty of a university for example, are not mentioned unless the independent faculties have a status equivalent to that of a university.

Terms appear in the nominative singular form, unless only the plural is used.

The expression appears in the official language of the country. Greek and Bulgarian terms are transliterated into the Roman alphabet with the term in the Greek or Cyrillic alphabet in parentheses.

Only the official terms for educational establishments are used and not specific names of establishments. Thus, primary school, gymnasium, grande école are included as types of establishment, but specific institutions of these types (London Road Primary School, Gymnasium St Servatius, École Nationale d'Administration) are not.

Common or conventional denominations and synonyms have been included if they are widely used and well known and might appear in texts about the education system. These have a specific entry with a cross-reference to the principal term.

Since the same term may be used to denote different concepts in different countries, readers should always check that the definition corresponds to the country for which they require information. The name of the country is always indicated below the term.

Types of educational institution that no longer exist are mentioned only if they are still referred to in national documents on education.

Grammatical variants

This heading covers the grammatical variants of each term (declined and plural forms, with the exception of those in English and French which involve only the addition of -s), indicating the main forms that the term may take in a text. These grammatical variants make it possible to find entries and the definition of a term even if the spelling is not identical with that of the basic term. In languages which use a large number of different grammatical forms, such as Finnish or Hungarian, only the root of the word is indicated and is marked with an asterisk (*), so that the reader will recognise the unchanging part of the word. One or two examples of the main declined forms will be given.

Levels of education

The level of education specified corresponds to the level of the educational programme which is offered by an educational institution. However, some establishments provide education at several levels (e.g. folkeskole in Denmark cater for primary and lower secondary age pupils). The level or levels of education indicated for each institution represent the level(s) of the educational programme(s) typically offered.

The definitions of each level of educational programme comply with the criteria used in the UNESCO International Standard Classification of Education (ISCED 1997). This Classification is an instrument geared to the collection of statistics on education at international level. It covers two cross-classification variables, namely fields of study and levels of education, with the two further dimensions of general/vocational/pre-vocational orientation and the transition from education to the labour market. It covers 'all organised and sustained learning activities for children, youth and adults including those with special educational needs, irrespective of the institution or entity that provides them or the form they take'. The ISCED 97 headings, together with their short descriptions and the way they are used in the present Glossary, are explained below. For further information on ISCED 97, readers should visit: <http://portal.unesco.org>.

- ISCED 0: The initial stage of organised instruction, which generally begins at the age of 3 and lasts between 2 and 3 years (pre-primary education). These programmes are designed to introduce very young children to a school-type environment. On completing them, children continue their education at ISCED level 1.
- ISCED 1: Programmes at this level generally begin between the ages of 5 and 7 and last 4 to 6 years. They are designed to give pupils a sound basic education in reading, writing and mathematics, along with an elementary understanding of other subjects such as history, geography, natural science, social science, art and music. This level also includes programmes suited to children with special educational needs and programmes for adults. In many countries, ISCED level 1 corresponds to primary education, or the first years of basic education, wherever compulsory education is provided in the form of a single structure with no distinction between its primary and secondary levels.
- ISCED 2: Educational content at this level is generally designed to complete the provision of basic education beginning at ISCED level 1, and usually entails 3 to 4 years of schooling. Programmes at this level are often based on a more subject-oriented pattern. Completion of ISCED level 2 often coincides with the end of compulsory education. Education is normally general, but in some countries technical or vocational courses are offered at this level. It also includes programmes suited to children with special educational needs and adult education programmes.

ISCED level 2 corresponds to the final years of basic education, wherever compulsory education is provided in the form of a single structure with no distinction between its primary and secondary levels. In all cases, this Glossary uses the common expression 'lower secondary education' in the explanatory notes on terms for institutions offering ISCED level 2 programmes.

In countries in which compulsory education is provided in a single structure without any transition between ISCED levels 1 and 2, the name of the institution and the two levels concerned are stated in the 'level of education' column.

- ISCED 3: This usually begins at the end of full-time compulsory education. There is greater specialisation in these programmes than at ISCED level 2 and they are often subdivided into general, technical and vocational streams. The age for admission to this level is typically 15 or 16. Education at ISCED level 3 may either be terminal (preparing students for direct entry into working life), or transitional (preparing for entry to tertiary education). The qualification obtained on completion of a programme at this level is necessary (but not always sufficient) for securing access to tertiary education. ISCED level 3 also includes programmes suited to children with special educational needs and programmes for adults.

In all cases, this Glossary uses the common expression 'upper secondary education' in the explanatory notes on terms for institutions offering ISCED level 3 programmes.

- ISCED 4: This comprises education or training courses provided between secondary and tertiary education. Programme content is normally more specialised or detailed than in the second stage of secondary education. In the national context, the content of these courses is not considered as being of ISCED level 3 and a qualification testifying to satisfactory completion of level 3 is not always required for admission. Courses are generally more advanced and more specialised than secondary education courses. They are often of a technical or vocational nature and normally last between 6 months and 2 to 3 years. Programmes at this level are widely known as post-secondary non-tertiary education.
- ISCED 5: This comprises programmes with a more advanced educational content than those offered at ISCED levels 3 and 4. Admission normally requires at least the satisfactory completion of ISCED level 3 or its equivalent. ISCED level 5 includes programmes with an academic emphasis (ISCED 5A) that are largely theoretically based and intended to provide sufficient qualifications for gaining entry into research programmes or professions with high skills requirements, and programmes of practical or technical training (ISCED 5B) that are generally shorter than the former and prepare for entry to the labour market. This level may also include adult education programmes. ISCED level 5 programmes correspond to studies leading to a first or second tertiary education degree.
- ISCED 6: This level relates to tertiary education programmes which lead to the award of an advanced research qualification. Such programmes correspond to the second stage of tertiary education and, in most countries, to doctoral programmes.

In this Glossary, the corresponding ISCED level is noted in the case of each national term.

To clearly identify terms for separate schools providing education for pupils with special educational needs, the abbreviation 'SEN' (in brackets) is added after the ISCED level.

To clearly identify terms relating to institutions offering solely or mainly adult education, the abbreviation of 'adult education' (i.e. 'A.Ed.') is added directly after the ISCED level.

If the terms concerned are the same as the ones used in mainstream education, this is indicated in the explanatory note.

Explanatory notes

The explanatory notes provide a definition of the type of educational establishment with a brief description of its main characteristics. Some specific terms needed to understand the context fully have been kept in the original language with a translation into the language of the glossary – for example, names of examinations, certificates or cycles of education. Terms in the original language appear in italics.

All cross-references to other terms explained in the glossary are marked by an arrow (➔) followed by the name of the term in question.

The standard explanatory note for an establishment includes the following categories which can contain different information depending on the level of education:

- organisational characteristics and type(s) of education provided,
- legal status,
- funding,
- administrative system,
- final qualifications offered.

a) Organisational characteristics and type(s) of education provided

For institutions at school level, the age categories are indicated. For institutions at post-secondary and tertiary level only the notional entry age is mentioned (rather than the actual age at which some students start their courses after delays or breaks in previous levels). Admission requirements, such as certificates of achievement (and the name of the institution where it is obtained), statements that the previous level has been completed satisfactorily, or entrance exams are also given.

Further details provided concern the following:

- the branches (general, technical, vocational) or the fields of study (multidisciplinary, artistic, technical, etc.); the term 'multidisciplinary' refers only to tertiary education institutions which offer a very broad range of studies; where primary or secondary schools offer adult education programmes, this is indicated in the note;
- the timetable of the classes (full time, part time, evenings, etc.);
- the length of the study programmes and the division or not into stages or cycles; in addition, tertiary education programmes can be of the short (less than 2 years or 2 to 3 years), medium (3 to 4 years) or long type (5 years and over);
- the language of instruction is specified where more than one language of instruction may be selected;
- whether institutions at school level (ISCED 0 to 3) are co-educational or not;
- the religious status of school level institutions (ISCED 0 to 3). The following categories are used: schools with a religious character or faith schools are described as 'denominational'; institutions offering religious education not restricted to a single faith are described as 'non-denominational'; if institutions are not identified in this way they are secular institutions which offer no religious education, although they may offer moral education or ethics. The fact that religious education is offered by the institution does not necessarily mean that it is compulsory for all pupils.

b) Legal status

The status of an institution is normally linked to its founding or governing body. This may be a public body (operating at central, regional, local or institutional level) or a private body (for example, a church, charity or commercial body). The main examples are:

- Public-sector or state institutions: those provided directly by the public authorities, such as a ministry, a province or region, a commune or another body.
- Private establishments: those founded or governed by religious or other bodies or individuals. These establishments may also be subdivided according to the principal source of funding (see below).

For institutions at tertiary level, the university or non-university status of the institution is indicated. University level institutions comprise all those institutions that have an official or legal status equivalent to a university, whether they are called universities or not.

c) Funding

Irrespective of their legal status, educational establishments may be funded wholly by the public sector, subsidised by the public sector (i.e. with part of their expenditure paid by the state) or privately funded (e.g. from fees, donations or sponsorship). The categories included in this glossary are:

- Public-sector or state-funded establishments: those fully funded by public authorities, such as a ministry, a province or region, a commune or another body.
- Establishments subsidised (grant-aided) by the State: those partly funded by the public authorities. The balance of funding may be met from registration and/or tuition fees, charitable donations and endowments, or commercial sponsorship.

Irrespective of the primary source of funding, students (or their parents) may be required to pay for tuition. This information is included in the explanatory note.

d) Administrative system

The public authority exercising the highest level of administrative and legal authority for the institution (for example, a ministry) is indicated. The sharing of responsibilities, the way decision-making powers are assigned between the different levels of administration and the various degrees of autonomy of establishments are not described.

e) Final qualifications

For primary, secondary and post-secondary education, the names of final certificates awarded are indicated. In the case of primary and secondary education, the name(s) of the institution(s) to which a final qualification gives access are indicated, in addition to the name of that qualification.

For the tertiary level, the main qualifications obtained are defined as:

- all diplomas corresponding to ISCED level 5B;
- degrees (all first and second diplomas corresponding to ISCED level 5A);
- all further and/or specialisation diplomas (corresponding to ISCED levels 5A or 5B);
- doctorates (advanced research degrees) corresponding to ISCED level 6.

For more information on qualifications, readers should consult the second edition of Volume 1 of the European Glossary on Education on examinations, certifications and titles (2004).

Explanatory note: Institution offering full-, part-time and open learning upper secondary, post-secondary and tertiary education, usually to people beyond compulsory school age (16). Courses often last one or two years, although many shorter course and study opportunities are on offer. Academic admission requirements are related to courses, but the experience and previous learning of mature applicants can be considered. Non-advanced courses do not normally have formal entry qualifications. Advanced courses normally require candidates to hold formal qualifications, such as passes in the Scottish Qualifications Certificate of Education (SQC) or equivalent qualifications. The courses provided are mainly vocational, including both theoretical and practical elements, but there is also some provision of general education at upper secondary level. Overall responsibility for this institution lies with the Ministry for Enterprise & Lifelong Learning and its Department, which is answerable ultimately to the Scottish Parliament. A college is an independent incorporated body, although most of its funding comes from the Scottish Funding Councils for Further & Higher Education, a non-departmental public body which reports to the Scottish Executive. Fees are at the discretion of each establishment but many students, including those under 18 years of age or unemployed people, are exempt from paying fees. Colleges also make extensive provision for students who live at a distance and cannot attend them in person. Most courses lead to the award of a certificate or diploma of the Scottish Qualifications Authority (SQA) – a statutory body responsible for national qualifications at all levels (below degree level) offered in schools, further education colleges and some higher education institutions in Scotland – at one of 7 levels from Access to Higher National Certificate. Adults can follow different types of upper secondary course leading to the Scottish Qualifications Certifi-

These special schools offer one or more of eight types of provision adapted to the following specific educational and developmental needs of particular groups of pupils: 1) slight mental disabilities; 2) moderate or serious mental disabilities; 3) serious emotional and/or behavioural difficulties; 4) physical disabilities; 5) children admitted to hospital or in quarantine for medical reasons; 6) visually impaired children; 7) children with hearing impairments; 8) children with serious learning difficulties. At the age of 2½, children can go to the pre-primary section of the school voor buitengewoon basisonderwijs (although two of the foregoing types of provision are not available at pre-primary level). The transition to special primary education normally occurs at the age of 6, but can be postponed for 2 years. While in principle the latter lasts 7 years, with the transition from special primary to (special) secondary education (School voor buitengewoon secundair onderwijs) normally occurring at the age of 13, some pupils may spend up to 9 years in special primary education. In schools providing special education, there is no general curriculum as in the case of mainstream elementary education. The government has drawn up lists of developmental objectives for some of the foregoing types of provision. Depending on circumstances and individual needs, schools draw up an action plan for each child, selecting various objectives from the official list and adapting the plan regularly to his or her evolving personal requirements. In some cases pupils receive the certificate of primary education (getuigschrift basisonderwijs) normally awarded at Basisschool or Lagere School. The certificate gives access to lower secondary education at Middenschool or Secundaire school. For information on the authority responsible, status and funding, see basisschool.

Secondary schoolCountry: United Kingdom (ENG/WLS/NIR)Level: ISCED 2 and 3

Explanatory note: Institution providing general full-time education for pupils aged from 11 (or 12/13 where a three-tier system applies, see ▸ Middle school) to 16 or 18. Admission does not generally depend on academic ability in England and Wales (see ▸ Comprehensive school) but in Northern Ireland the system is predominantly selective and some areas of England also retain some selective schools (see ▸ Grammar school and ▸ Secondary modern school). In England, most publicly-funded secondary schools are ▸ Maintained schools but some are legally independent schools (see ▸ Academy, ▸ City Technology College and ▸ City Academy). The majority of maintained secondary schools in England now have ▸ Specialist school status. In Wales and Northern Ireland, there are no programmes for specialist schools or publicly-funded independent schools; publicly-funded secondary schools are all ▸ Maintained schools (Wales) or ▸ Grant-aided schools (Northern Ireland). There are two main stages up to the end of compulsory education; key stage 3 (ages 11 to 14) and key stage 4 (ages 14 to 16). All pupils follow a common core curriculum (statutory curriculum), which varies in some respects between England, Wales and Northern Ireland, up to the end of key stage 4, when they take up to around 10 single-subject general and sometimes vocational qualifications (typically GCSEs). After completion of key stage 4, depending on local arrangements, there may or may not be a choice of providers of full-time post-16 education; school (if the school has a sixth form), a ▸ Sixth-form college or a ▸ Tertiary college. Students follow courses in up to 4 or 5 general or vocational subjects, leading to qualifications (typically GCE A-levels or VCE A-levels) after two years' study. The AS qualification is the first half of a full A-level and also provides an exit qualification in its own right after one year's study; students taking A-level programmes typically take four or five AS qualifications in the first year of the sixth form (also known as year 12) and carry around 3 subjects through to year 13 and the full GCE A-level (also known as A2). Most secondary schools are co-educational. Publicly-funded schools may not charge fees. Ownership, management and funding arrangements depend on the legal category: see for England and Wales ▸ Community school, ▸ Foundation school, ▸ Voluntary aided school, ▸ Voluntary controlled school, for Northern Ireland ▸ Controlled school, ▸ Controlled integrated school, ▸ Grant maintained integrated school, ▸ Catholic maintained school, ▸ Voluntary grammar school. Synonym in England and Wales: High school. In Northern Ireland, the term post-pri- mary is used in preference to the term secondary school to describe collectively grammar schools (to which admission depends on academic ability) and other secondary schools.

Explanatory note: Institution providing full-time lower and/or upper secondary education for pupils or students aged 12 to 18. Provision is divided into 3 stages of 2 years each. The first stage is divided into a mainstream (the A-stream) and a B-stream which is more vocationally oriented. From the second stage onwards, there are four types of secondary education as follows: general (Algemeen Secundair Onderwijs or ASO), technical (Technisch Secundair Onderwijs or TSO), vocational (Beroepssecundair Onderwijs or BSO) and artistic (Kunstsecundair Onderwijs or KSO). While each stage normally lasts 2 years, training in the second and third stages may in some cases be completed by a third year. Secondary schools can offer one or more stages and types of education. For information on admission to the first stage of secondary education, see ▸ Middenschool. Admission to the subsequent year or stage is generally based on satisfactory completion of the previous year or stage. Pupils who receive an oriënteringsattest B ('B orientation certificate') cannot freely choose the type of secondary education or branch of study in which they will be enrolled the following year, although exceptions to this may be determined by the council of admissions. The training programme within each course of study consists of a common part (determined by the type of education) and a specific part characteristic of the particular course itself. Final objectives for the A-stream in the first stage, and for the second and third stages of all types of education, and developmental objectives for the B-stream in the first stage are drawn up in the case of all courses within the core curriculum and of cross-curricular themes. At the end of the second year of the third stage of ASO, TSO or KSO, or at the end of the third year of the third stage of BSO, successful students obtain a diploma secundair onderwijs which gives access to all types of tertiary education institution (see summary table). Arts and fashion last 2 years while nursing lasts 3 years, with 18 as the theoretical age of entry. In the case of arts and fashion, a diploma secundair onderwijs is awarded and gives access to all types of tertiary education (see summary table). A certificate which does not give access to tertiary education may also be awarded, depending on a student's previous education. In the case of nursing, students receive a diploma verpleegkunde (nursing diploma). Sometimes, depending on a student's previous education, an additional diploma secundair onderwijs is obtained, giving access to tertiary education. Explanatory note: Institution providing education for children aged between 2 and post-16 whose special educational needs cannot be met satisfactorily in a mainstream ▮ Maintained school. Not all special schools cover the whole age range. They cater for pupils with a wide variety of special needs and include schools for pupils with: visual impairment; speech and language impairment; moderate, severe or specific learning difficulties; hearing impairment; and emotional and behavioural difficulties. Some special schools are residential. Approval for the designation of a special school has to be obtained from the Secretary of State in England, the National Assembly for Wales or the Department of Education in Northern Ireland. Such schools may be maintained schools which are fully-funded by the local authority, or non-maintained schools which are run by charities or charitable trusts. Non-maintained special schools may charge fees on a non-profit-making basis. Independent schools may also be approved as suitable for the placement of children with statements of special educational needs by local authorities. Local authorities are required to pay the appropriate fees for placement of pupils in non-maintained special schools or independent schools. Schools which receive public funding for such pupils are required to meet similar standards in respect of premises, qualified staff, education and care to those in maintained special schools. Independent schools often provide for children with exceptionally severe and/or low incidence difficulties requiring a level of specialist input that local authorities might find impractical or insufficiently cost effective to provide themselves. Special schools may also be established within the premises of a hospital (hospital schools) to provide education for children who are spending a period of time in hospital. In England and Wales, maintained special schools are divided into two legal categories, ▮ Community special schools and ▮ Foundation special schools.

EURYDICE, the information network on education in Europe

Eurydice is an institutional network for gathering, monitoring, processing and circulating reliable and readily comparable information on education systems and policies throughout Europe. The Network focuses primarily on the way education in Europe is structured and organised at all levels. Its publications output may be broadly divided into descriptions of national education systems, comparative studies devoted to specific topics, and indicators and statistics.

Eurydice works mainly for those involved in educational policy-making nationally and in the European Union institutions, as well as at regional and local levels. However, its publications may be consulted by anyone and are available both in print and over the Internet.

First launched by the European Community in 1980, the Eurydice Network consists of a European Unit set up by the European Commission in Brussels and National Units established by education ministries in all countries taking part in Socrates, the EU education action programme. Eurydice has been an integral part of Socrates since 1995. The Network boosts European cooperation in education by developing exchanges of information about systems and policies and producing studies on issues common to education systems.

Eurydice is a dynamic interdependent Network to whose work all Units contribute. The European Unit coordinates the activity of the Network, drafts and distributes most of its publications, and designs and administers Eurydice databases and the central website. National Units provide and are involved in processing the data on which this activity relies and ensure that the output of the Network reaches target groups within their countries. In most countries, Units are situated within the education ministry. In a few, however, they are located in library resource centres, or bodies for administration and research.
